Charlotta Lindberg
Frontend student with .NET experience

From leisure leader to frontend developer, now I have found what I want to do all day. It wasn't that working with the kids wasn't fun, but there was something about those programs and codes that captured me in a completely different way. It just felt right to follow that curiosity and see where it could take me.

And here I am now, completely engrossed in creating and improving web pages. It's that kick of solving problems and building something from scratch that makes me know I made the right choice.
